Keeping School Open Is Board's Challenge

Reflecting on the responsibilities of the Arlington County School Board, Dr. Barnard Joy observed, "In view of federal court decisions and the state's massive resistance laws, the major concern of the school board has been to keep Arlington schools open."

In its capacity as policy-making body for the school system, the board has worked to provide an effective program to meet the needs of every student. Its progress insures an improved learning situation.

Housed in this building are the offices of the Arlington County School Board, the nucleus of the school system.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Edward J. Braun examines general management records.

Speaking with a prospective teacher is Mr. Charles J. Walsh, assistant superintendent.

As superintendent of schools, Mr. Ray E. Reid administers Arlington County School Board policies.

Dr. Joseph B. Johnson, assistant superintendent, checks files of instructional material.

Superintendents Study Language Curriculum

Extension of the foreign language program to six years and institution of Russian in high school curriculum were under consideration by the school superintendents. Heading the staff, Mr. Ray E. Reid served his first term as superintendent. In this capacity he acted as liaison between the local school system and the state department of education.

Working with Mr. Reid were three assistant superintendents. Mr. Charles J. Walsh supervised personnel, while Dr. Edward J. Braun and Dr. Joseph B. Johnson took charge of business management and instruction respectively. The superintendents worked together to see that all school board policies were carried out.

TO the SENIOR CLASS of 1959..

Congratulations are in order to each student attending Washington-Lee High School.

You have accepted the challenge that was presented to you in the first school publication. You have demonstrated a desire to work to the maximum, to be a good citizen, to serve one another, and to make a contribution to the reputation of Washington-Lee High School.

The seriousness of thought and purpose has impressed others trying to help you. Your efforts have been an inspiration to me and my associates. I trust that you will cherish memories of your public school career and maintain the loyalty to such a great institution. What you do in the future will reflect upon the school and may I, at this point, challenge you to be master of your life in achieving the goal of your tomorrow.

I challenge you: to be a leader in your field of endeavor, to explore the unknown, to be an outstanding citizen, to continue to grow morally and spiritually, to develop and maintain a happy home, to make a great contribution to humanity, to conquer the art of inquiry, and last but not least, to maintain humility.

It is with regret that I see you go, but these things must come to pass. May I wish you well.

B. T. Norris,
Principal

Handing his letter to the senior class to Mrs. Pearl Hanson, Mr. Benjamin Norris sets the theme for the annual.

Mrs. Mildred Nixon pauses for a moment from her duties as secretary to the principal.

Reflecting his interest in student affairs, Mr. Benjamin Norris offers advice to Barbara Coffin.

Mr. Norris Assumes Administrative Duties

Accepting new responsibilities Mr. Benjamin T. Norris, formerly associate principal, began his first year as principal of Washington-Lee. Providing the theme for the 1959 Blue and Gray, his opening message in the Crossed Sabres challenged the student body to do better this year than ever before.

Associate Principals Direct School Affairs

Cooperation among the three assistant principals results in effective administration of all phases of school life.

Mr. Alexander H. Anderson, assistant principal for three years, is in charge of teaching material and instruction. Previous to this position, he taught government and was grade chairman for the class of 1954. Presently sponsor of the Activity Council, Mr. Anderson has also instructed social studies students in college and in a New Jersey high school.

Mr. James D. Mahoney, formerly purchasing agent for the county, is now supervising buildings and grounds as assistant principal. He has also served in the capacity of athletic director.

Mr. Harry Pitt, the newest associate principal, has charge of student personnel and the conduct of students. Before accepting this position, he taught physical education and biology. Active in athletics, he is varsity wrestling coach and has worked with sports at George Washington University.

Assistant principals Mr. James Mahoney and Mr. Harry Pitt discuss an administrative problem. Working with the other principals, they devote their time to making the school run more smoothly.

Arranging for an Activity Council meeting is Assistant Principal Mr. Alexander Anderson.

Mrs. Lois Downs—Attendance.

Mrs. Catherine Lippy B.A.—
Permanent Substitute; Hall
Monitor Supervisor.

Mrs. Jeanie Riviello—Secretary to Assistant Principals.

Mrs. Ruth Watkins—Registrar.

Students ask for information concerning club activities. Central office personnel are kept busy answering many such requests.

In charge of all bookkeeping, Mrs. Grace Thomas spends much of her day adding columns of figures and keeping financial records.

Mabel Allen B.A., M.A.—
College Counselor.

Sarah Cloud B.A., M.A.—
Junior Counselor; Junior Red Cross.

Mrs. Alice Lott B.A., M.A.—
come Club.

Carl McDaniels B.A., M.A.—
Job Placement Counselor.

Mrs. Honora Obourn B.S.,
M.A. — Junior Counselor;
Junior Red Cross.

Jean McGurrin discusses a problem with one of the guidance counselors, Mrs. Alice Lott.

Guidance Opens Door For College Aspirants

Opportunities that future school experiences offer are pointed out to ninth graders when they plan their high school programs. This aid in scheduling is the first contact students have with the guidance program of W-L.

Incoming sophomores are assigned grade counselors to whom they may go when questions arise. By means of conferences, the counselors help students with academic problems and adjustment difficulties, and act as a liaison between teachers and students.

College and placement guidance is offered as the students near the close of their high school careers. Advisors aid applicants in choosing colleges to fit their needs after cumulative records and aptitude test scores are reviewed. The same care is taken in determining what jobs students may be suited for upon graduation. The guidance department is concerned with the development of students into educated, well-adjusted citizens.

While her note is approved by Mrs. Alice Lott and Mr. James Lynch, Betsy Ryman awaits an admittance to class. Every student must follow this procedure upon returning to school after an absence.

Attendance System Is Unique in This Area

Relocated this year, the Attendance Office now occupies the room which previously housed the Lost and Found. Mrs. Lois Downs handles all attendance records, assisted by students who collect absentee slips each period.

The central attendance system is unique in this area. Outstanding features of the program include an individual file for each student, the processing of all excuses through the office, and a check of each period's absentees against the first period records. If any doubt is created, the slip in question is placed on a "suspense peg" for further study.

Carolyn Cohen waits her turn at the Attendance Office as Bob Wilhelm is given a tardy slip by Mrs. Lois Downs.

Artists Serve School With Creative Talents

Serving the school with their abilities, the art students planned and constructed sets for the school plays, arranged bulletin boards for hall display, and designed posters advertising school events.

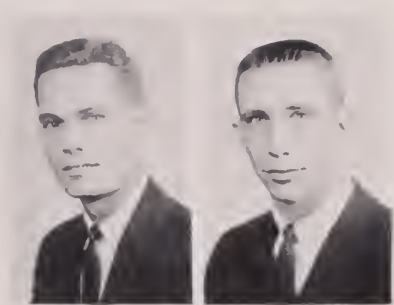

For the first time, students were admitted to the third and fourth year art classes only with the approval of the art teachers. In the advanced program they worked on their own, pursuing fields of special interest to them. Activities included the illustration of classics, sculpture in clay and plaster, and travel poster design. Students were urged to enter contests and displays in order to develop their talents as much as possible.

"Lettering isn't really too hard," remarks Madeleine Sidle to Sue Rogers as they prepare letters for one of the bulletin boards. Hall displays keep students informed about school activities.

Agnes Latham B.A. — Typing II.

Mrs. Edith Purcell B.S. — Shorthand I, II, Typing I, II; Fashion and Modeling Club, Gamma Tri-Y.

With the assistance of Mr. Richard Greene, clerical practice student Cynthia Varva prepares to mimeograph material for a teacher.

Distributive Education student Pat Stanley sells supplies to Norman Smith in the school store.

Donna Cloud uses a dictaphone machine as she operates one of the new electric typewriters.

Business Department Adds New Machines

Business students this year learned shorthand with a new Vu-graph, which projects symbols on the blackboard as the teacher writes them. Sixty-four new typewriters and a posting machine were also available for classroom use.

For those who wanted typing and shorthand for college, eleven first year typing and six first year shorthand classes were included in the curriculum. Advanced typing, shorthand, clerical practice, and book-keeping were also offered. Vocational Office Training, Diversified Occupations, and Distributive Education programs allowed students to earn money while continuing their schooling.

To gain practical office experience, Jackie Armstrong lists checks with the aid of a new posting machine.

Contests Offer Chance To Excel in English

Qualified students were given many opportunities to display their talents in the English department. Creative writing, essay, and speech contests provided a chance to excel in various areas. The forensic contests, held in early March, drew interested persons for competition in public speaking, poetry reading, prose reading, and spelling.

Accelerated programs, which have rapidly increased in number, also promoted the advancement of higher learning. The two junior classes and one senior class attempted to gain a deeper understanding of literature through discussion, and composition skills were emphasized for more effective writing. To make selected books readily available to the students, classroom libraries were developed.

Other interests were stimulated by the two three-act plays, drama and speech courses, and advanced composition class, and journalistic activities.

"This is a misplaced modifier," Col. Howard Hunter tells Sue Miller in answer to her question.

Earle Young B.A., M.A.—English III; Assistant Track Coach, Cross Country Coach, Philosophy Club.

Characters give their opinions on order and disorder as they watch a boy playing with marbles in "The Tour."

Written by student Frank Reider, this play was presented by Mrs. Helen Shannon's English class.

"Over!" yell the boys as they volley the cage ball back to the opposing team.

Nurses Test Students To Guard Against TB

For the first time, tuberculin tests were provided for sophomores as a services of the clinic. The nurses work in connection with the physical education department, measuring the height and weight of each student and conducting hearing and vision tests. The results are recorded on permanent records.

All students are required to take physical education and health in both their sophomore and junior years. Basic skills of golf, basketball, archery, and other sports are offered to girls, while boys develop ability in wrestling, track, tumbling, and touch football.

In connection with the physical education program, study hall students are offered a driver education course.

"Sit still and be quiet!" says Margaret Mathews, a clinic aide, as she takes Missy Howard's temperature.

Determination is reflected on their faces as these girls battle for possession of the hockey ball.

Boys Study Clothing In Home Economics

Boys constituted the newest addition to the home economics department. Neither grades nor credit were given in the program, the object being to make apparent the need for proper selection and care of clothing. Available to every senior boy with a study hall, the course was both for the college bound and those terminating their education at graduation.

In preparation for future homemaking, girls cared for living facilities provided by the school which included a living room-dining room, den, bath, and utility room. The delightful aromas which often pervaded the hallways were the results of actual preparation of food in the kitchens.

Furthering their homemaking interests, twenty-five senior girls went to the University of Maryland Career Spectacular to gain insight into college activities.

Mary Payne peeks into the oven at her devil's food cake as Sherry Hatfield prepares the icing for it.

With attention focused on their work, these girls apply the skills they have been taught in home economics class. In their study, they learn the correct procedures for making their own clothes.

Working in the auto shop. Roger Lohman cleans and replaces spark plugs while preparing his car for winter weather.

Shop Students Apply Industrial Techniques

Working behind the scenes of many school activities, students of the industrial arts or "shop" program were challenged to apply the skills and understanding they had gained.

Electronics students, in addition to regular projects, handled the sound service, providing lights and sound at assemblies and athletic events. Mechanics in the auto shop increased proficiency through care and inspection of students' and teachers' cars. Graphic arts activities included printing materials for scholastic and social events. Mass production techniques in wood-working gave acquired skills practical application.

Mr. Hans Klose explains the construction of a lamp base to a wood-working student, Charles Metcalfe.

"Now, if I put this here . . ." thinks Val McDaniel as he repairs a record player in the electronics shop.

Katharine Newton B.A.—Latin II, III, IV; Junior Classical League, Latin Honor Society.

Amy Peck B.A., M.A.—French I, II; C.A.R., Le Theatre Francais.

Norman Underwood B.A. — Spanish I, III; Italian Club.

Mrs. Frances Waters B.A., M.A. — French II, III, IV; C.A.R., French Honor Society.

Encouraging students to broaden knowledge and interest, the language department offers challenging classes and the long-awaited foreign language lab.

The six partitioned booths of the lab are connected to a master panel by individual sets of earphones. Tape recordings of stories and conversations are played, and students listen, translate into English, or answer questions about the recorded matter. This unique study method is available to interested foreign language students.

Under experimentation is a combined third year German and fourth year Spanish class. As class periods are divided, each group of students is provided with equal recitation and reading time.

Looking up from her Latin assignment, Judy Altman is prepared to answer Mrs. Newton's next question.

Library Facilities Aid Educational Research

Colorful bulletin boards and imaginative displays stimulate students to use the library more efficiently. Over 500 W-Lites take advantage of this veritable "information service" daily.

The majority of those who use the library facilities do research, gathering materials from the periodical shelves or from any of 12,000 reference books. Students in search of pleasure reading choose from 4,000 exciting fictional or biographical novels. In addition to reading matter, the library provides films, slides, records, and tape recordings for classroom use.

Students are introduced to the newest volumes in the library through showcase displays, while teachers become acquainted with the resources at a faculty tea. Three librarians are always on hand to answer questions, locate materials, and generally aid the students.

Performing two of her varied duties, Miss Barbara Mays, librarian, checks in books and files cards.

Donna Scott mirrors an attitude of concentration as she reads her literature assignment.

Mrs. Mary Campbell B.A.—Algebra II, Plane Geometry; Coordinator of Tri-Y's.

Annabelle Caulfield B.A. M.A.—Department Chairman; Algebra II, College Algebra, Solid Geometry, Trigonometry.

Accelerated Programs Attract Mathematicians

Through courses now available in the extended math program, students of every capability are guided toward goals of greater knowledge and possible advanced positions in college work. By participating in an advanced placement program, present sophomores who began high school subjects in junior high will be able to surpass the scope of courses now taken only by seniors.

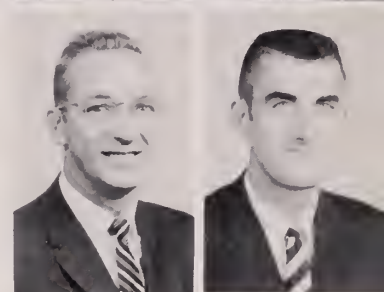

Several other types of advanced programs are functioning, giving every student more opportunity in the field. Presently being carried on experimentally, an intensified program in plane and solid geometry affords students a concentrated single study. Accelerated programs are also available to juniors and seniors offering more complex studies than ordinary high school work provides. A course in commercial math is available to students pursuing a business career.

they perform at pep rallies and help to boost school spirit at athletic events.

Vocal Groups Provide Music for Community

Numerous programs highlighted the year for the Music Department. Striving for perfection, the music groups spent long sessions during school and at night rehearsals to achieve polished performances at the Candlelight Concert, Vesper Concert, choral and band assembly, Thanksgiving and Easter programs, and the spring concerts. The Madrigals and Boys' and Girls' Ensembles provided music for churches, luncheons, and community meetings.

Early in the year, efforts were concentrated on the county-wide Music Festival, held bi-annually. Guest conductors directed the band, orchestra, and choral groups. Dr. Helen Hosmer worked with the combined chorus, while Don Gillis and Allar Bone directed the orchestra and band respectively.

All Science Students Enter Projects in Fair

Inspiration and opportunity for individual research were fostered through the addition of the Northern Virginia Science Fair to the activities of the science department.

Everyone enrolled in biology, chemistry, and physics was required to complete a project for exhibition and rating. These and additional lab experiments and reports were displayed at the annual Science Night in March.

Camping trips to state parks were added to the pursuits of advanced biology students. Using newly acquired school equipment, they had ideal occasions to collect and observe living beings in their natural habitats.

New activities were not the only advancements by far. All class programs were revamped in an effort to provide the needed additional scientific education.

Using the pan balance, Gary Larsen measures the exact amount of magnesium chloride for a chemistry experiment.

Elections Supplement Government Curriculum

Federalism, socialism, capitalism, and Mesmerism are typical working terms of the varied courses in the social studies department. Including both required and elective subjects, curriculum ranged from history to commercial law.

Campaigns and conventions following the procedure used in county and state politics were election time activities of the civics groups. To supplement classwork, students took field trips to Gettysburg, the state legislature, and other historical points of interest.

Lie detector tests, electric shock experiments, and personality analyses stimulated interest in psychology. Challenged by the scope of world events, geography students gained a better understanding of current problems. Economics revealed the background of the world situation as related to economic necessity.

Cafeteria Staff Utilizes New Serving Counters

From behind newly installed counters, 2400 cartons of milk, 400 sandwiches, and numerous plate lunches are served daily. Before classes have even begun in the morning, Mrs. Frances Le Baugh is busy directing her staff in preparation for the noon meal.

After the lunch periods, the custodial staff joins in straightening the tables and chairs and cleaning the cafeteria for use as a study hall.

General maintenance of the school plant is the primary duty of the custodians. In addition to this, every meeting or activity requires some previous arrangement or subsequent action by the staff. Mr. Donald McInturff organizes the employees so that one of three shifts is on the job twenty-four hours a day.

Pushing their loaded trays through the cafeteria lunch line are Jeff Field and Bob Franey.

Miller's All My Sons Challenges Dramatists

Running the gauntlet of human emotions, Arthur Miller's All My Sons offered a true test of acting ability for the cast and presented a challenge of understanding to the audience.

The theme of the play is the effect upon his family of the psychological conflict which confronts Joe Keller. He has lied to clear himself of blame for shipping defective airplane parts during the war. Under the direction of Mr. James Townsend, the largely sophomore cast worked long hours to perfect their character interpretations.

This realistic and dramatic play was a departure from the light comedy and semi-dramatic offering usually staged by the Thespian Honor Society.

Despite family differences, Chris Keller and Ann Deever find romance.

"Georgie, Georgie, Georgie," exclaims Lydia Lubey delightedly as she and her childhood sweetheart, George Deever, meet again.

As the audience applauds, the Keller family, flanked by the entire cast of All My Sons, takes well-deserved bows.

Make-up committee member Linda Watten readies Bob Callaway for his role as Bert in All My Sons.

His family divided and friends gone, Joe Keller is left to face the consequences of his early mistakes.

Crashing onto the field preceding the "Turkey Day" victory over neighboring G.W. is John Ashton.

Team Co-Captains Ed Joran and Lee Havener crown Football Queen Sondra Moseley at the Turkey Hop.

Mr. Albert Haringer, athletic director, sets "The Olde Oaken Bucket" in its permanent resting place.

Mood, Spirit Contrast

During Thanksgiving

Gathered in the gym, the student body gave thanks together and reflected upon the meaning of the Thanksgiving season. The mood changed as friends milled around the blazing bonfire, watching a G.W. player being burned in effigy.

As Thanksgiving Day dawned, crowds thronged to see the George Washington game, held at Washington-Lee for the first time in eleven years. Victorious for the third year in a row, the Generals permanently retired "The Olde Oaken Bucket." Sponsored by the Crossed Sabres staff, the Turkey Hop drew almost 600 couples and featured the crowning of the football queen.

Cheerleading "cave man style" is demonstrated by Lynne Thomas, Patti Read, and Jeanne Sands at the G.W. pep rally.

"Sultan of All Turkey" Bill Yelverton triumphantly brings "The Olde Oaken Bucket" before the student body.

Peggy Leffler arranges food baskets in the gym before the Christmas program. Under the guidance of the student council, each homeroom filled a basket with food to be presented to a deserving area family.

Glancing over his notes, Rev. John Reinheimer prepares to deliver the message at the Christmas assembly.

Even Mr. Benjamin Norris' Volkswagen takes on a festive air with the help of the student council's gift to him.

Gaiety, Pensiveness Prevail at Christmas

Gay colors—warm reds and greens, cool blues and silvers — laughing faces, thoughtful minds, all added to the spirit of Christmas season. Lending a sparkling touch to the hallways, doors were decorated as homerooms competed to win the prizes for the “best dressed” doors.

At the Christmas assembly, baskets piled high with food crowded the gym floor, representing the spirit of giving. Laughing voices filled the Shoreham Hotel ballroom as students and alumni exchanged greetings at the Alumni Dance. As the vacation drew to a close, thoughts turned to the challenges of the coming year.

Miss Dorothy Baumle raises her baton to lead the student body.

As members of the activity council, Barbara Plott and Gail Anderson judge one homeroom's entry in the door decoration contest. Prizes were awarded for the winning religious and secular entries.

College, Career

Undersecretary of Labor Millard Cass launches the Career Week program at a student assembly.

Mrs. America of 1958 addresses a group of potential homemakers during the Career Week program.

Conferences Look Toward Future

Mirrored in the faces of students and parents attending College Night, thoughts turned toward the challenge of the future. Representatives of colleges and universities throughout the country acquainted attentive audiences with the programs and opportunities available at their respective schools.

Career Week offered afternoon sessions at which speakers addressed interested students on the various aspects of their vocational fields. An assembly featuring Undersecretary of Labor Millard Cass informed the student body of the job potentialities in the nation as a whole.

Mr. Timothy Smith describes the George Washington University curriculum to parents and students at College Night.

Listening to Armed Services representatives, School Superintendent Raymond Reid glances over the program.

As the Career Week program begins, Mr. Carl McDaniels serves as moderator for a panel of students questioning representatives of the Department of Labor.

Drawing the cheers of the student body, the Navy Sea Chanters present their version of "Twilight Time."

Assemblies Entertain, Advance Knowledge

Providing the opportunity for students to advance their knowledge in various fields, assemblies presented programs concerning the history of the school, the scoring of a wrestling match, and the way of life in other countries.

Guest speakers quizzed by student panelists and performances by school and visiting music groups lent variety to the programs. Outstanding students were honored at the awards assemblies.

Leading the Speaker's Bureau demonstration of cadet corps maneuvers are Bob Croft and Billy Beale.

Royal smiles flash across the faces of Bobby Jones and Anne Roland, King and Queen of Hearts.

School Dances Draw Enthusiastic Crowds

At the Potomac Boat Club, on the ballroom floor, or in the gym, dances meant fun and entertainment for W-Lites. The salty atmosphere of the boat club prevailed at the crowded Crew Dances, and the nautical theme of the Mediterranean Cruise carried couples to Treasure Island.

Swaying to the crooning of Steve Lawrence were those attending the Valentine Dance, while the Charity Ball decorations served as a reminder that spring was on its way. The Detectives' Drag, to which female "detectives" dragged their "prisoners," and the Sock Hop added a unique element to the dance schedule.

Dona O'Bannon and Bob Bast dance together at the Fall Sophomore Mixer, which offered an opportunity to make new friends.

Council Election

Excited students awaited their turn to vote in the spring student council elections. For the first time, regulation voting machines were used as part of the council's project to improve the voting procedure. Enlisting the aid of civics students, who served as registrars, the council initiated a plan comparable to that of the national elections.

Sponsorship of the Sophomore Orientation, Leadership Training Conference, spring novelty dance, and a faculty tea were included in the council's activities this year. Forum members offered their services at College Night, while the committees they formed investigated possible projects such as the initiation of a student-operated school bank.

Walter Pilcher, Student Cooperative Association president, checks the agenda before calling a meeting to order.

Treasurer Jackie Murphy records a deposit as Secretary Jo Binns looks on.

Discussing plans for the Alumni Dance are Hal Clark and Carl Estabrook, second and first vice-presidents.

Council Coordinates All Activities

Carrying out many of the plans laid last year, the activity council functioned for the first time. The early weeks of the year were devoted to assigning permanent meeting places to all clubs and finding sponsors for new activities.

Council members, elected from each of the activity areas, organized committees to propose an amendment to the school constitution and made rules for the formation of new clubs.

Many requirements and by-laws for procedure were initiated so that future councils might operate smoothly under a well-organized plan.

Gathered with Sponsor Mr. Alexander Anderson, Gail Anderson, Barbara Plott, Hal Clark, and Suzy Gubin compare notes of the previous meeting. Acting as the executive committee, this group handled business for the council.

ACTIVITY COUNCIL — Bill Watt — treasurer, Paulo Cavalcanti, Jim Evans, Natalie Tulloch, Mary Arthur, Jolani Bergquist, Suzy Gubin, Gail Anderson — presi-

Eager Students Await Arrival of '59 Annual

June comes! and with it the day when the annuals are placed in the hands of eager students. Laughing and exclaiming over the book's contents, W-Lites realize that several changes have taken place.

Instead of the traditional blue or gray, the yearbook is bound by a photographic cover. Perusing its pages, students focus their attention on several vivid color pictures which present a striking contrast to those in black and white.

Amidst the confusion of distributing annuals, staff members pause to reflect. Their challenge has been met, and they will carry with them forever the benefits of a truly rewarding experience.

New Sales Idea Ups Penman Subscriptions

Completing the move from room 129 to the White House, the Penman staff enjoyed the many advantages of their new location. For the first time, yearly subscriptions to the literary magazine were sold. This idea was well received, and students eagerly awaited the fall, winter, and spring issues.

Changes in the publication were initiated, with the resulting magazine including not only illustrated stories, poems, and articles, but sketches and other art work as well. A colorful cover bound each volume.

To finance the Penman, money was raised by continuing the sale of doughnuts at lunchtime to sweet-toothed students and by publishing the Student Directory.

Glancing over issues of exchange magazines, Editor "Liz" Holland picks up pointers for the forthcoming Penman.

As the staff works hurriedly in anticipation of an approaching deadline, Mrs. Mary Councell, Penman sponsor, makes a final check of the printer's galleys.

Cutting and editing a paste-up of the Penman in preparation for publication are Betsy Bourke, poetry editor; Lynn Norton, short story editor; "Liz" Holland, editor-in-chief; and Erik Sundquist, literary editor.

Second Trophy

Accepting the challenge of publishing an outstanding newspaper, the Crossed Sabres staff endeavored to win a second Southern Inter-Scholastic Press Trophy. A change of printers enabled students to receive papers with improved printing and clearer pictures. Smooth, long-lasting white paper replaced newsprint.

Journalism students covered "beats" and reported their information to the editorial staff, who edited articles and fitted them to layouts. In order to meet deadlines, the staff spent the two afternoons before going to press in the White House making final checks on copy, writing headlines and putting the finishing touches on the paper.

Foreign Lands Hear 1959 Choir Recordings

"The song heard 'round the world" was that of the 1959 Choir when the Voice of America recorded the Candlelight Concert. Performances for the community were given at the dedication of Westover Baptist Church and at a Y.W.C.A. service in the National Cathedral. Culminating the year's activities was the Spring Concert.

The thirteen Madrigal singers were honored when they were invited to perform before eight visiting Russian educators. They also sang at the dedication ceremony for the National Education Association building in Washington.

Commanding the attention of all, Jim Clayter, choir president, begins the rehearsal by calling the group to order.

Mixed Chorus Sings For Future Students

"Watch those dotted quarters!" was one of many reminders to members of the Mixed Chorus as they learned their concert programs and prepared for future musical experiences. Basic skills were applied as the group performed at the county junior high schools. Singing for the incoming students at orientation assemblies, the chorus encouraged participation in high school music groups.

Rendering such memorable songs as "Blue Moon" and "Stout-Hearted Men," the Boys' Ensemble performed at the Speakers' Bureau assembly. The eleven members devoted time after school to preparing programs for church and community groups.

Anticipating a coming performance, Wayne Burroughs, president of Mixed Chorus, leads the group in an exercise.

Lifting their voices in song, members of the Girls' Choir highlighted their year with a program for the Southern Music Education Conference in Roanoke, Virginia. The group also performed with the Arlington Civic Symphony.

In the revision of the choral department this year, Girls' Choir replaced Girls' Chorus. From the new group, members of the student-directed Girls' Ensemble were selected. They presented programs for several community organizations.

Miss Mary Lou Alexander, Director.

Coordinating the two groups of Girls' Choir is the responsibility of the presidents, Jean Anderson and Joyce Murphey.

Students Manage All Orchestra Proceedings

In addition to displaying a musical talent, members of the Orchestra proved their ability as student leaders. Officers chosen to serve on an executive committee handled all problems brought to their attention and acted on suggestions from the group.

Playing under the direction of a prominent composer was one of the opportunities offered the instrumentalists this year. Mr. Don Gillis, known for his humorous and whimsical compositions, conducted the combined orchestras of Wakefield and W-L at the County Music Festival.

Two of his scores, "The Alamo" and "Peachtree Promenade" from the Atlanta Suite, were included in the program. The benefits of this experience were reflected in performances throughout the year.

Orchestra President Richard Kimball waits attentively for the downbeat.

Modern Music Challenges Band

Contemporary music created a challenge for the Concert Band as they strived to develop their musical talent. This was displayed in the County Festival under the direction of the noted composer Allan Bone. Other programs were prepared for assemblies and the Spring Concert.

At graduation members of the Reserve or Tenth Grade Band filled in for the seniors. This group was organized to train new students and take care of the overflow from Concert Band.

Many of the students were in Marching Band, which encouraged enthusiasm with pep songs and provided half-time entertainment with the Majorettes at football games.

Standing in readiness, the Marching Band and Majorettes prepare to practice for a halftime performance.

Music Theory Class Learns Basic Skills

"A dominant seventh chord is used . . ." could be heard in the Music Theory class. Miss Dorothy Baumle trained her students to become adept at sight reading and to understand the building of chords. The mechanics of good music were emphasized as students wrote four-part harmonies.

The Music Appreciation class studied the background and history of composers and forms of music. Miss Mary Lou Alexander encouraged her students to attend many concerts so that by hearing a wide variety of music they might gain further knowledge of its basic elements.

Elos Initiates Portray Classical Characters

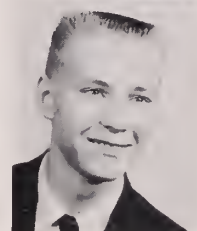

Phileas Fogg, Madame Butterfly, and Tom Sawyer were all present as new members were initiated into Elos, the Society of Artistic Endeavor. Operas and classic novels provided initiates with famous characters to portray.

Producing the "Echo," a recording highlighting the year in sound, was the major undertaking of the society. At the final assembly, Elos presented an award to its outstanding member and a scholarship to a deserving student.

Honor Society Admits Journalists

Lois Murphy presents a Quill and Scroll pin to Loretta Greene after her initiation into the society.

Purchasing a Christmas evergreen to be adorned with cards brought by the students, the Quill and Scroll Honor Society presented the decorated tree to Arlington Hospital.

Recognition of students who excel in some phase of journalism is the chief purpose of the organization. Members of the Washington-Lee chapter are chosen from the busy staffs of the Penman, Crossed Sabres, and Blue and Gray.

Honor Society Spurs Science Competition

Temporarily neglecting their scientific talents to sell hot dogs, cokes, popcorn, and peanuts, Science Honor Society members earned funds by managing the football refreshment stands.

Hoping that a monetary goal might stimulate participation in the science field, competitive examinations were initiated for sophomores and juniors. Students were able to gain information outside the classroom through the society-sponsored help sessions and the technical library.

"Fresh popcorn! Hot popcorn!" yells Dave Hjortsberg as he roams the football stands selling refreshments.

Speakers Collaborate To Help Post Offices

"May I have your attention please for morning announcements." Each morning, as a service to the school, the members of Speakers' Bureau announced the activities of the day. For the first time, the Bureau initiated help sessions in public speaking for students interested in improving their speech delivery.

During the year, members rendered many services to the school and community. They delivered talks to the P.T.A., community service organizations, and interested civic groups on such topics as the need for cooperation between the Post Office Department and the public. The members were also asked to make an appeal for donations to the March of Dimes.

Honor Society Gives Dramatic Presentation

Inspired by the Greek masks of tragedy and comedy, the members of Thespian Honor Society helped with the school's dramatic presentations. The fall play, Arthur Miller's All My Sons, was sponsored and presented by the organization.

Initiation of new members was held twice during the year. After obtaining twenty points through participation in dramatics, the initiates had a formal induction ceremony in the Little Theater.

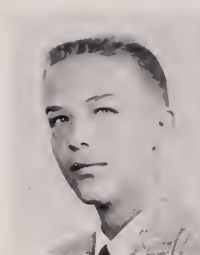

"Three minutes more," thinks Thespian Judy Davis as she hurriedly applies her make-up for the fall play.

Tikos Compiles Data From Measurements

"That makes the cafeteria 7,475 square feet." Equipped with engineering tape and notepads, members of Tikos, the math honor society, measured the school because the original blueprints had been lost.

Other activities included movies and a speaker on careers in math. Solving difficult problems at home also challenged members, and approximately 250 help sessions gave assistance to students.

New members were inducted at a formal initiation in accordance with a new constitutional amendment which limited membership to interested, capable students.

Society Samples French Cuisine

Song and laughter pervaded a downtown restaurant as members of the French Honor Society gathered for their annual French dinner. Throughout the year, movies and speakers were a regular part of the program, providing those students who excelled in the language an opportunity to learn more about France itself.

In the fall, the society sponsored a dance, "Mediterranean Cruise to Treasure Island," the proceeds of which were donated to A.F.S. and the landscaping project.

Latin Scholars Give Students Assistance

Latin as a language overshadowed the influence of Roman civilization in the activities of the Latin Honor Society this year. The challenge of acquiring excellence in usage was impressed upon students as the society members conducted after-school help sessions.

Roman customs did find their place, however, at the March initiation. Each initiate was given the opportunity to share his knowledge of the classic heritage. Activities included a skit written by Peggy Harlow which exemplified the Roman style of drama.

Funds raised by society members through the sale of personalized stationery were used to support the A.F.S. and school landscaping projects.

As Latin Honor Society Secretary Lydia Smith calls the roll, President Lynn McChesney reviews the agenda.

Spanish Carols Cheer Clinic Convalescents

Tacos, enchilladas, and spicy Spanish rice were featured as the Spanish Honor Society's covered dish dinner initiated activities for the year. As the holidays drew near, members practiced Christmas carols to sing for the patients at Anderson Clinic.

Speaking in Spanish, foreign exchangee Conchita Jerez vividly described her home life in Spain to society members. Dinner at a Mexican restaurant and a fall hayride were sponsored by the organization.

"Wir sprechen Deutsch" in the German Honor Society, smallest of the foreign language honoraries. Member Dave Hjortsberg's account of his motor scooter tour of Europe entertained society members at an early meeting. Later in the year, education in Germany was discussed by a German Air Force attache. The Yuletide season featured the singing of German carols.

Taking advantage of the newly installed language lab, honor society members Mike Diamant and Rick Mohr practice answering questions about tape recorded German stories.

F.T.A. Receives Firsthand Experience

Observing and helping in elementary schools afforded Future Teachers of America members the opportunity to learn teaching methods firsthand.

Visitations to schools for handicapped children impressed upon students the need for adequately trained teachers in this area. National Education Association films offered further information concerning teaching as a career.

Alpha Tri-Y Heeds Beauty Tips

"Keep your stocking seams straight," was one of the grooming tips offered to the girls of Alpha Tri-Y by a Washington fashion model. Others who spoke on the many aspects of self-improvement included a make-up expert and a hair stylist.

The art of setting a fine table with china, silver, and crystal was discussed by a representative of Westmorland Sterling, Inc.

Fostering several service projects, the girls busied themselves with volunteer work at the National Orthopedic Hospital. They also made Christmas stockings for the children's outpatient clinic.

Beta Membership Supports Heart

Working in the Lost and Found, Pat Tobey examines a student's coat for possible identification.

From the blazing G.W. Bonfire to the selection of Miss W-L, queen of the Charity Ball, service was the watchword of the Beta Club activities.

Guided by a new constitution, members carried out the ideals of the national organization by participating in school and community projects. Students earned hours by entertaining in hospital wards, campaigning for the Heart, Tuberculosis, and Cancer Association and spending Saturdays with the children at the Blue Plains orphanage.

Service to the school included sponsoring the Lost and Found and polishing athletic trophies. Representatives attended the state Beta convention in Richmond.

Beta Tri-Y Members Visit Fairfax Hospital

Beta Tri-Y supported Washington-Lee athletic teams this year by sending them telegrams when the Generals played away from home. These telegrams wished the team luck, and let the players know that the students were behind them. The members also made banners and posters urging the team to "Scalp the Warriors" and "Powder the Prexies."

Visiting the Fairfax Nursing Home and other nearby hospitals was a project continued throughout the year. Members took a required training course before participating in this Red Cross sponsored activity.

All projects of Beta Tri-Y were directed toward the betterment of home, school, and community. With this purpose in mind, the girls sold Christmas seals, made frames for pictures drawn by art students, and did work for the Arlington Tuberculosis Association's X-ray unit.

Bible Club Discusses Religion of Teenager

"The Teenager and Life," theme of many Bible Club activities, was originally developed by Wendy Collins of Youth for Christ International when she spoke to the group. "Seventeen" and "Going Steady," films illustrating God's concern for a youth having no goals in life, were shown to carry out the theme and emphasize the importance of religion in life today.

Opening with hymns and prayers, weekly meetings were conducted by the sponsor, Mr. Thomas Christie. Each program was based on the ideal "to know the Lord Jesus Christ and to make Him known."

Aided by Kathy Ball and Sponsor Mr. Thomas Christie, Dave Mastbrook, Bible Club president, plans the next meeting.

New Club Advances School Biology Study

Nature walks in the spring and early fall provided Biology Club members with many excellent opportunities to collect living creatures to use in biological research. In the laboratory, the specimens were examined and the various characteristics of each were noted.

During the winter months when such outings were not possible, students heard lectures, viewed films, and toured Washington's natural history museums.

Club members divided into groups for more concentrated study in several areas of biology. Microbiology involved close examination of minute bacteria and other organisms. The taxidermy group planned to establish a permanent museum of mounted animals for the biology department.

C.A.R. Names Rucker Treasurer

Capturing several awards in state and nationwide competition, the W-L Society, Children of the American Revolution gained recognition from the national organization. Recognized for their outstanding programs, publications, and year-long projects, society members also boasted the state treasurer, Ben Rucker.

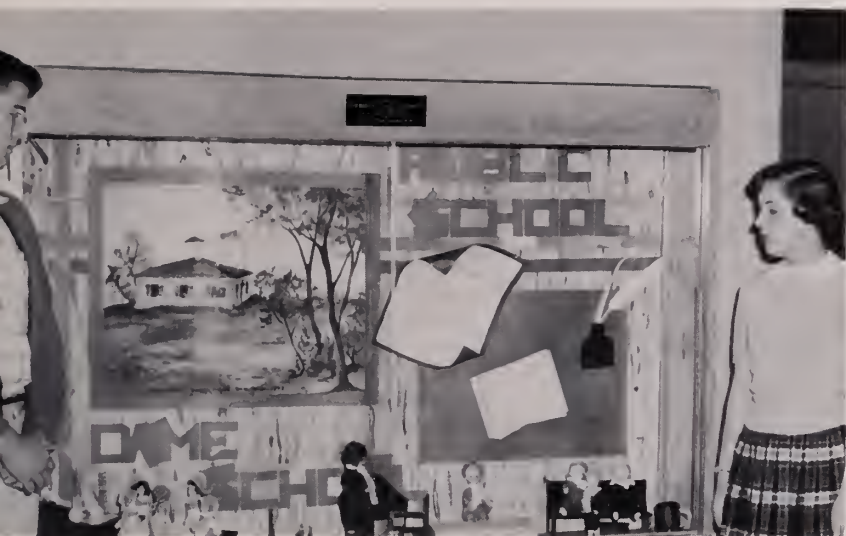

Under the direction of a new sponsor, Miss Katherine Rucker, the society took an active part in the national conservation and patriotic education projects. Students displayed relics of the Revolutionary War in several local department store windows and sponsored an assembly featuring the Ft. Myer Old Guard.

Debate Club Studies Educational Systems

"Be it resolved that the United States adopt the essential features of the British system of education." This was the year's topic of discussion for the Debate Club. From the membership both the varsity and junior varsity debate teams were selected.

Under the direction of their new sponsors, Mrs. Francelia Butler and Mr. Wayne Bloomingburg, students actively participated in regular intra-club debates. During the year, members of the organization attended workshops and represented W-L in the state debate competition at the University of Virginia.

Delta Girls Consider Pointers from Experts

"Good grooming is the keynote of success." With this motto as their guide, members of Delta Tri-Y conducted a program of self-improvement. Meetings regularly featured speakers offering tips on make-up, hair styling, and correct posture. Under the direction of a model from John Robert Powers' School, a graduate of W-L, Tri-Y members planned and presented a spring fashion show.

Community service played an important part in the group's program. Projects included the filling of Thanksgiving and Christmas food baskets to be presented to underprivileged families.

D.O. Club Hosts Six Neighboring Schools

To express their appreciation for the extensive training they received during the year, members of the Diversified Occupations Club held a banquet in honor of their employers.

Highlighting their year, the group hosted six Northern Virginia high schools at the District Two Convention. W-L students captured the top three awards in the essay contest and took second place in the poster competition and third in the spelling bee. Madison College in Harrisonburg was the site of the state convention, at which the district winners competed for further awards and trophies.

Making beds at Arlington Hospital are among the duties of nurses' aide Kathy Weiss, D.O. student.

Models Laud Careers

In World of Fashion

"Hesitation, step, then pivot" was a basic modeling technique taught to the Fashions and Modeling Club members. Dieticians stressed the importance of three balanced meals daily and discussed the do's and don'ts of dieting.

Casual daytime and attractive evening hair styles were demonstrated, and the importance of proper hair care was emphasized. Washington area models encouraged good grooming, correct posture, and future careers in the world of fashion.

Club meetings were devoted to learning the fundamentals of wardrobe planning, including attractive color combinations and accessory usage.

"This trick can help to correct your posture," demonstrates Bonnie Peterson to Barbara Jacobs and Linda Christey.

Banquet, Style Show Climax F.H.A. Year

Primarily concerned with preparing to be home economists, the Future Homemakers of America did not fail to accept the challenge of present opportunity. Benefiting from the additional instructions available to them, members, who had had at least one-half year of home economics, displayed the results of their cooking and sewing projects at the Mother and Daughter Dinner and Fashion Show.

"Gifts for That Man" was discussed with the group by a representative of Woodward and Lothrop. F.H.A. girls also made Christmas tray decorations for the patients at Anderson Clinic.

Members Knit Afghan At Gamma Meetings

"You must get your squares in, girls!" was a familiar announcement at Gamma Tri-Y meetings. Members worked to complete an afghan for presentation to a home for the aged.

Other projects including pasting Christmas cards in scrapbooks and making tray favors for hospital patients, and giving an Easter party for children at a nearby orphanage. Gamma girls enjoyed getting together informally at the initiation tea, picnic and potluck supper.

Perform Services, Maintain Order

Supervised by Mrs. Catherine Lippy, the one hundred students who comprised the force were selected from volunteers to serve during their study periods. In order to be accepted applicants had to have the recommendation of their homeroom teachers and a "C" average.

In addition to their regular duties as hall patrols, the captains of each period's squad accepted added responsibilities. Taking roll and double checking possible congested areas, they also filled vacancies with substitutes and helped teachers eliminate hall disturbances.

Club Follows International Theme

“What makes a nation?”

A moment of silence, then hands shot into the air. Discussing questions such as this was only one of the activities of the International Club.

Under the direction of Miss Dorothy

Downing, the group sponsored a Care package program. Lectures by embassy members, movies of foreign countries, folk songs from other lands, and informal speeches by the exchange students contributed to international understanding.

J.C.L. Retains Roman Traditions

Roman togas were the order of the day at the annual "eggs to apples" banquet of the Junior Classical League. Beginning with a pre-dinner devotional honoring the gods, the evening ended with entertainment featuring would-be gladiators and artists. Upperclassmen held the positions of honor, with sophomores serving as indentured servants.

Embodying the Roman tradition, members presented plays, rehearsed songs, and viewed films. Culminating the social events of the year was a spring picnic.

Activities were organized in an effort to keep Latin, the basis of the romance languages, alive at W-L.

Key Club Aids Drive For Retarded Children

Numbering the stadium seats was the major undertaking of the Key Club in the fall. Under the direction of Mr. George Goetz, faculty adviser, the boys spent many Saturdays readying the stands for the George Washington football game.

By helping with school and community projects, the club fulfilled its goal of service. In keeping with tradition, members delivered food and toy baskets to deserving families during the Christmas holidays. Drives in which the group participated benefitted cancer and retarded children charities.

Spring activities included the annual Key Club dance, selection of the club queen, and the presentation of awards to the outstanding senior boy and girl.

Keyettes Earn Funds For Educational T.V.

"By serving others we serve ourselves."

To follow their motto the two-year old Keyette Club, an affiliation of the Ki-Wives of Arlington, launched a campaign of community and school service.

Raising money for the school's first educational T. V. was the main project of the year. Other activities included participating in T.B., Red Cross, and Polio drives; making toys for the D.C. Children's Hospital; planning recreation for the Blue Plains Orphanage children; and painting the stadium seats.

Kappa Donates Toys To Orphaned Children      French Club Directs, Produces Short Play

A spirit of good will pervaded the meetings of Kappa Tri-Y as the members collected Christmas toys for donation to orphaned children.

With community service as their primary objective, the girls of the only sophomore Tri-Y laid plans and carried out a project of aid to a nearby family.

Through an open door came the strains of "Chevaliers de la Table Ronde." Members of Le Theatre Francais were gathered together singing traditional French songs.

Concentrating on their pronunciation, the students also produced and directed La Surprise D'Isidore, a play presented for French students.

Library Club Learns Medical Hopefuls Aid Equipment Operation Hospital Nursing Staff

Breaking the reigning silence, a library assistant stamped the date due to check out a book for a waiting student. As members of the Library Club, these aides worked behind the circulation desk, shelved books, and helped fill requests in the periodical rooms. In addition, they were taught how to operate the school movie projectors and tape recorder.

Working at the National Rehabilitation and Orthopedic Hospital as nurses' aides, members of the Medical Careers Club gained valuable experience in their chosen vocational field. Trips to the Washington Hospital Center, Dewitt Army Hospital, and the Medical Museum provided excellent opportunities for exploration of the different branches of medicine.

Mathematicians Study Theory Development

Basing its ideals on the principle that the theory behind work is equally as important as the work itself, if not more so, members of the Math Club devoted their meetings to the analysis of complex mathematical hypotheses.

Functions of computers, determinants, and probability tables were demonstrated to the group. Through their discussions of the many aspects of higher math, members studied those theories not generally covered in the classroom.

Making plans for the next mathematical discussion, president of the Math Club, Bill Koons, talks with the other officers: Mike Abramowitz, treasurer; Tom Pyke, vice-president; and Judi Stevens, secretary.

Trail riding with time out for a packed lunch, hayrides, and weekly riding at a local stable were just a few of the activities of the new Mounted Generals Riding Club. Interested students were offered the opportunity to learn and enjoy the fundamentals of riding and jumping.

Although many of the members were amateurs, the club boasted several expert ribbon-winning equestrians.

Highlighting the season was the April Invitational Horse show at Ballantree Farm. Culminating the awards was the presentation of the Washington-Lee Challenge Trophy, donated by the club to recognize outstanding horsemanship.

Art Work Contributes to Penman

Heads bent over their work, Penman Art Club members labored diligently on illustrations for forthcoming issues of the literary magazine. Competing with one another to have their art work published, each strived to perfect his contribution.

In addition, the students planned and cut linoleum blocks, which were used to print the Penman cover designs. Special techniques, such as the art of block printing, were taught. Members also designed bulletin boards for the Student Council.

Due to the ever present competition, perfection is always apparent in the illustrations of the Penman Art Stimulating their interest in foreign affairs, Pro-Con Club members heard an expert deliver his views on the Middle East situation. Representatives of Nationalist China, Iraq, and Israel also spoke on the current events in their countries.

Following each speaker, a meeting was devoted to discussing the pro's and con's of his ideas. Informal debates on integration and the Berlin crisis were included in the activities to challenge the students' understanding of world problems.

Organization Cites Rescue Squad

Faced with the challenge of being ready to cope with any emergency, the members of the Rescue Squad held weekly drills in first aid and firefighting to keep in practice. Evidencing its high standards, the organization received an invitation to join the International Rescue and First Aid Association, an offer rarely extended to a high school squad.

On hand at all home sports events, the squad rendered their services to athletes, spectators, and even an occasional concessionaire. Those needing attention were in capable hands, as each member had earned a Red Cross first aid card before being admitted to the squad.

Club Members Find Russian Challenging

“... krasaveetza ... nyeodnokratno ...” muttered the members of the Russian Club as they walked down the halls practicing pronunciation. In addition to mumbling strange phrases, members had to master the totally different alphabet (with thirty-three letters!), learn the complex grammar, and gain a workable vocabulary.

A native Russian who learned of the club and volunteered her help taught the language in cooperation with faculty members Miss Elizabeth Huls and Mr. Dana Pond. Included in the club program for the first time this year, Russian provided an opportunity for interested students to learn this challenging language.

Practicing pronunciation, Nancy Tyree reads, “How are you today, comrade,” to Arthur Levin in Russian.

Sound Service Tests Equipment for School

"Testing, 1...2...3...4..." Another microphone is checked before an assembly begins. A small group of boys who formed the Sound Service managed all the electrical equipment for school activities. Assemblies and athletic events were "wired" for sound by these students under the direction of Mr. Bruno Paras.

After taking at least one year of electrical shop, juniors and seniors were selected to serve as sound technicians. They were aided by interested sophomores who gained valuable experience for future work in the organization.

"Fix the amplifier next," suggests Orval Yarger to Bill Russell as they set up the microphone for an assembly.

"W59L calling. Come in, please!" Now a reality after years of planning, the Transceivers Club put into operation the first ham radio station at Washington-Lee.

Licensed members of the group operated the station, putting into actual practice their basic knowledge of the theory and workings of the radio, the code and its transmission.

Word Study Intrigues Prospective Linguists

Is blue to green as red is to orange, or as green is to yellow? Verbal analogies were a subject of discussion among Vocabulary Club members as they studied word meanings and relationships.

In addition to analyzing words at their meetings, members prepared spelling lists for all grades and heard lectures on terms used in science and writing.

Welcome Club Greet Newcomers

"We have homeroom three times a week," replied a Welcome Club member in answer to a new student's question. Serving as a link between the Guidance Department and the students, the organization was responsible for the orientation of those entering our school for the first time.

Many of the group's activities were carried on during the summer months, as transferees began to register for the fall term. At this time, guided tours and "get acquainted" dinners offered prospective W-Lites a chance to learn of the facilities and opportunities offered them by their new school and community.

Cheerleaders Boost Athletic Spirit

Cheerleaders worked for school spirit, enthusiasm, and unity. Cheering at games, however, was only one of the many services they contributed to the school. While adhering to one of the strictest organization codes in the school, the cheerleaders carried on many activities which included keeping the student body informed of coming athletic events and selling tickets to athletic contests. One of their little known services was the interschool cooperation they promoted by carrying on correspondence with the cheerleading squads of other communities' schools.

Generals Start Slowly

But Finish Year Fast

Counted out before the season was half over, the Generals defied their critics and came back to win the Northern Virginia Championship and rank sixth in the metropolitan area. Although the gridders opened the season by edging neighboring Fairfax, they dropped four of their next five contests. Fortunately three of these defeats were dealt by downstate teams and did not count on the league record. The two league games included a victory over Hammond and a defeat from Annandale.

The end of the first six games marked the turning point in General fortunes for the year. A starting backfield finally emerged and included seniors John McCune, Bob Keyes, Robbie Cloyd, and junior Tom Cooper. The line, led by Co-Captains Lee Havener and Ed Joran, and the defensive team emerged as solid, reliable units.

The Generals began their march on the Northern Virginia Championship by beating Falls Church, 20-0.

On the field phone during a scoring drive, Coach Boyd Webb listens to a report on the G. W. defense.

Earnestly conferring on the sidelines, Mark Hyman and Robert Rimmer exchange ideas on Hammond strategy.

Pointing out a weak spot in the Falls Church defense, Coach "Chappy" Marvin counsels with tackle Jim Dwight.

Generals Take First "Olde Oaken Bucket"

With three games left in the season, the Generals entered into their annual clash with their cross-county rival, Wakefield. Both teams began the contest with identical league records; the winner would receive the Washington-Lee - Wakefield Trophy.

The Generals moved sixty yards early in the second quarter to score on a one-yard plunge by Bob Keyes. Holding a slim 6-0 lead at halftime, the gridmen put the game on ice by adding insurance touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters.

Paraphrasing the words of head coach "Chappy" Marvin, the 1958-1959 squad will be remembered as the first W-L team to achieve that third straight victory necessary to win the "Olde Oaken Bucket" from George Washington. John McCune scored the game's only touchdown as the General defense was impenetrable.

Baby Generals Show Continuous Progress

In the first junior varsity game in W-L history under the lights, the JayVees whipped a slightly favored O'Connell team 7-0, scoring on a seventy yard touchdown march late in the first half. The O'Connell game demonstrated the squad's lack of experience, but Coaches John Youngblood and Boyd Webb built the all-sophomore team into a powerful unit which rolled over neighboring competition. The offensive squad averaged better than nineteen points a game while a rugged defensive team held their opponents to slightly less than six points per game. Although the end of the season saw the Baby Generals' only defeat at the hands of Episcopal, the season was a rewarding experience to the team.

Virginia Championship Returns to Thinclads

With a new coach, Mr. Earle Young, and only a few returning veterans, the Harriers found themselves with a critical problem: regaining the state championship that they had lost to neighboring Wakefield in 1957. With a concerted team effort behind him, Captain Wade Whitener led the Harriers to the state title and an undefeated season over high school competition.

The Harriers first two victories foreboded the fates of any aspiring contenders. The team ran up perfect scores of fifteen by capturing the first five places in each meet. After dumping G. W., the thinclads won the Wakefield Invitational before crushing arch-rival Wakefield in a dual meet. Prepping for the state meet the Harriers met their only defeat at the hands of the Navy Plebes, but bounced back to climax the season with the Northern Virginia Championship. A week later the squad journeyed south and recaptured the state title.

Levin's Lads Capture Second in

While this year's team displayed many of the characteristics of recent General teams, it did differ in that most of the scoring punch was usually delivered by the squad's small men. With the coaching emphasis on defense, the hoopsters' games were marked by low scoring. Several games went into overtime periods including the George Washington and Mt. Vernon contests in the Northern Virginia Tournament.

Jay Vee Competition

In his first year at the helm of the Jay-Vees, Coach Del Norwood piloted the Baby Generals through a long and rugged schedule to a season record of five wins and twelve losses. Led by several stars including Wayne Burroughs, Terry Brown, and Pete Peterson, the hoopsters pushed several games into overtime periods. The squad met most of their success in the early season as they split their first six games. Later season victories included a win in which Mt. Vernon was limited to fourteen points and a win over George Washington which avenged an early season defeat suffered at the hands of the Presidents.

In close for a field goal, Terry Brown is fouled on the arm by an Annandale player.

Rifle Team Initiates First Year as Varsity

The varsity ranks of Washington-Lee entertained a new team this year as the rifle team attained varsity status. In preceding years the rifle team enjoyed only club status. A small team, the squad achieved its greatest victory by outshooting Montgomery Blair, the Maryland State Champions. This years team was captained by Leigh Beadle and coached by Mr. James Haren.

Harriers Emerge First In Evening Star Meet

Coached by Mr. John Youngblood, the Harriers took the Star Games this year, largely through the efforts of Wade Whitener. Bob Taylor set a new meet broad jump record, but was later surpassed in the state meet when Rus Peterson set a new state mark of twenty-two feet.

Wrestling Team Wins Virginia Championship

After losing their first match in two years to Pennsylvania's Waynesburg, the Generals marched through the rest of the season undefeated in dual matches, winners by a record score in the Metropolitan Tournament, and State Champions for the first time in the school's history.

After the Waynesburg meet, the grapplers were never seriously challenged during the regular season and soundly beat their neighboring competition. Host for the first time in the Metropolitan Tournament the Generals celebrated by bringing in six first places to win the meet by a record score, breaking the record they set the preceding year.

Under the direction of Coach Harry Pitt and through a concerted team effort, the squad brought home the state title. Keith Blevins, Steve Goodsell, and Steve Hobbs won individual titles. Coach Guy Cavallo led the JayVees to an undefeated season.

Baseball Team Gives Opponents Stiff Battle

After an uneventful year in which the emphasis was placed on rebuilding, the Generals looked forward to the 1959 season with great optimism. With five returning regulars plus several first line pitchers, the squad displayed early promise in pre-season scrimmages and intra-squad games.

Coach Dick Morton and his team had to play all of their games away this year but a similar policy last year accustomed them to this. Standouts for the year included Jim Baer, Bob Jones, Dan Carroll, Lee Havener, Bill Yelverton and John Findlay.

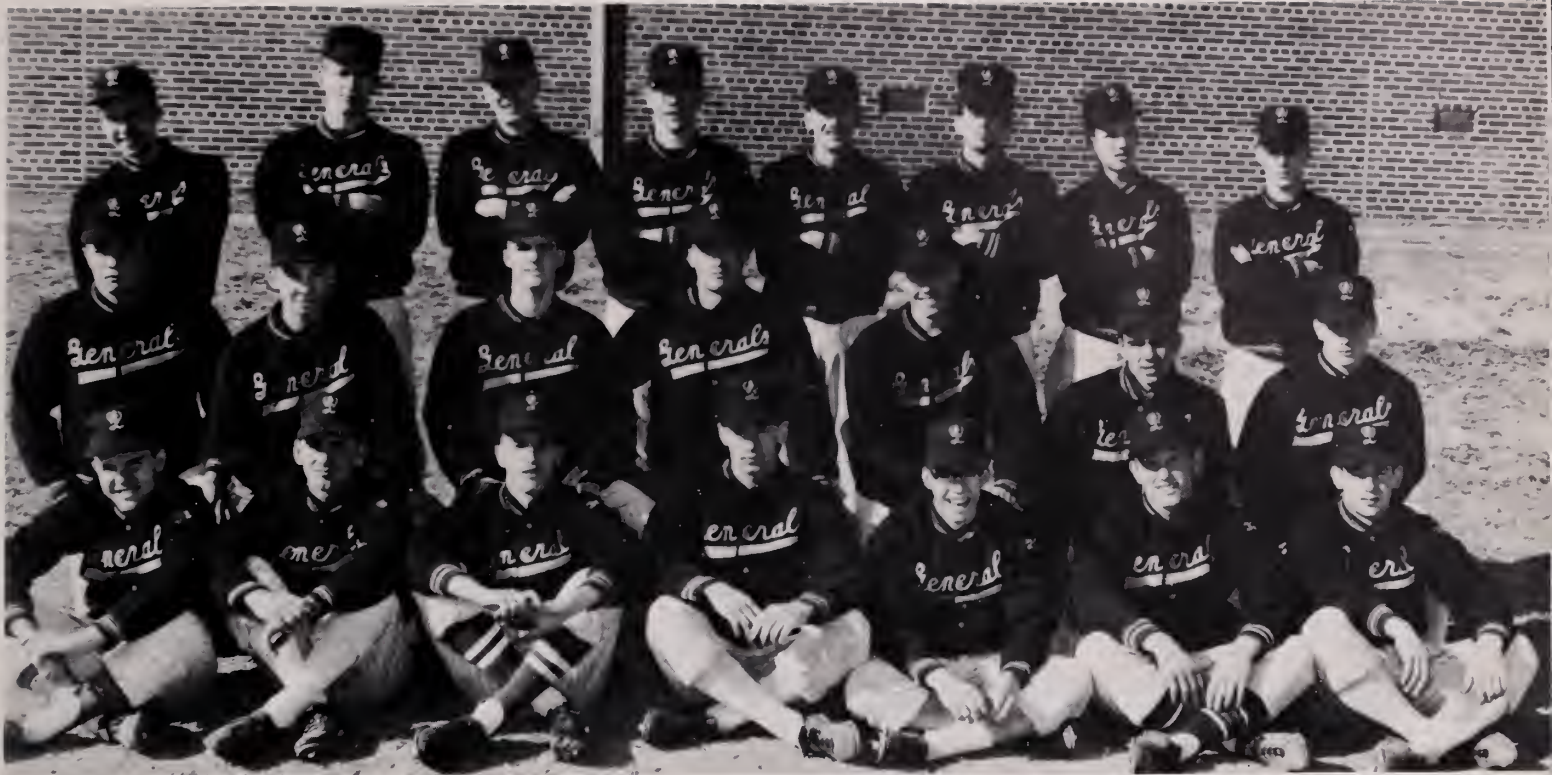

Pre-season practice finds pitcher Jim Baer warily checking first base before beginning his delivery to the plate.

Second baseman Bobby Jones tags Danny Carroll with the ball (hidden in glove) in a successful pick-off attempt during a practice game. During practices such as this, the team prepped for its stiff competition.

Outdoor Track Team Bids to Repeat Titles

Under the direction of a new coach, Mr. John Youngblood, the Harriers found themselves in the tenable position of trying to retain the State Championship as well as the Northern Virginia Championship. This year's team was comprised of many veterans including two from last year's mile relay team that came close to setting a new state record.

Last year's crew won international fame as Washington-Lee became the first American high school to be represented in the Henley Rowing Regatta in England. This honor was given in recognition of the crew's unprecedented feat of winning both the Stotesbury Cup and the National Schoolboy Rowing Championship for the second year in succession.

Returning from last year's varsity eight were this year's co-captains, Mendel Peterson and Frank Benson. With the addition of an appropriately named shell, the Challenge, the crew found itself facing the biggest challenge of any school team.

The members of the first varsity eight prepare to go down to the sea in ships as they hoist the shell to the

Golfers Face Area's Foremost Competition

Coach Glenn Causey and his team found many challenges before them as the golf season opened. Last year's team had won the Northern Virginia Championship, had ranked second in metropolitan competition, and had taken sixth in the state matches. With only one returnee, three year veteran Griffin Garnett, the golfers found competition stiff.

Tennis Team Hopes To Keep Prominence

With the loss of several lettermen due to graduation, the tennis team faced a tough problem in retaining its newly found prominence in the state tennis circles. Captain Pete Hoyt, returning for his third year, carried much of the load for this year's team. A new coach, Mr. Bernie Jankowski, assumed direction of the team.

Intramurals Give

Providing a challenge for all interested boys, the intramural program included numerous sports which ranged from football to ping pong. This year, several sports in the intramural system were extended to make possible competition with neighboring schools. Established as an annual affair, one contest saw our championship basketball team pitted against Wakefield's. Intramural participants formed the teams for the annual Junior-Senior Game as they did for the sophomores' contest against the faculty.

Much of the credit for the success of intramurals was due to the efforts of Mr. Mike Millan. With the cooperation of student captains and referees, Mr. Millan expanded the intramural program to its present status. Seniors, who had no scheduled gym classes, as well as underclassmen, participated in the intramural activities.

Explaining some forthcoming events in the intramural program to Bob Keyes, Mr. Millan points out one of the coming events in the spring schedule. Such a scene was typical in after school hours.

Boys Challenging Sports Program

Bob Utterback goes up above the outstretched hand of Jim Baer as he attempts a short jump shot. While he missed the initial shot, a teammate recovered in time to sink the rebound and draw the score closer.

G.A.A. Promotes Girls' Recreation

"We'll win this point," hopes Sandy Sprinkle as she serves the birdie during a badminton match.

"Shoot! Guard her! Get that ball!" and other excited cries could be heard from the gym as girls basketball intramurals started in the winter.

Sponsoring intramural sports from trampoline to softball, the Girls Athletic Association provided a chance for girls to participate in athletics.

Officers of the organization and representatives from all gym classes composed the G.A.A. council, which coordinated the year's activities. A bake sale to raise money for the treasury was one project planned by the council.

Movies, a program which presented careers in physical education, and a spring awards banquet were some of the special features offered to the girls.

President Steers

The 918 sophomores quickly adjusted to school activities, making new friends and joining clubs that appealed to their interests. Early in the year they elected their four class officers: Bill Breitweiser, president; Jane Crunkleton, vice-president; Sharon Matts, secretary; and John McFalls, treasurer. The "Mixer" in the Little Theater was the first social activity.

Several underclassmen demonstrated acting ability in the fall play, All My Sons, which featured Bob Bast in the lead. Other talented sophomores participated in sports, as the junior varsity teams competed successfully against area rivals.

Gary Swift, junior president, discusses plans for the fall party with Miss Elizabeth Dalton. As class sponsor, Miss Dalton advises the officers and helps in the organization of class activities.

Swift, Barnett,

Juniors met their challenge with enthusiasm. As members of the largest class, they participated in a wide variety of activities and prepared for their final high school year.

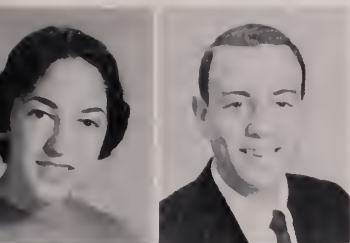

The fall party featured the movie, "Mr. Roberts," followed by dancing in the gym. Later, applicants for the American Field Service exchange program were selected, and awaited the news from New York as to who would represent W-L abroad.

In the spring, the traditional Junior-Senior basketball game stirred up friendly rivalry and promoted class spirit. Students looked to the future by taking trial College Board Exams and planning their senior schedules. Climaxing the year, the traditional prom was held at the Willard Hotel.

Lynn Zirkle, secretary; Ann Barnett, treasurer; and Lynn Barnett, vice-president, review the class agenda.

Memoriam

Harris Keller Williams

November 27, 1941 — November 29, 1958

Totaling receipts in order to determine the amount of dues still to be paid is Jim Massie, treasurer.

Danny Carroll, vice-president, dictates plans for the class project to Secretary Marcia Clough.

Keyes Initiates

Guided by Bob Keyes, Danny Carroll, Marcia Clough, and Jim Massie, the class of '59 adopted a new program of privileges for all seniors. The project of landscaping school grounds was undertaken.

Outstanding students received awards at the final assemblies, and enthusiastic upperclassmen displayed their talents at class night. Following in rapid succession were class day, the stag supper, baccalaureate, the prom, and graduation.

Through the hard work of the past three years, the class has met the challenge of Washington-Lee and now looks toward one of the future.

Today's challenges

Integrating Stratford effectively, Arlington citizens met the challenge of peaceful compliance with the court's decision.

STRATFORD J

Orbiting a solar satellite, the United States met the challenge of reaching outer space.

Organizing the Fifth Republic, Gen. Charles de Gaulle met the challenge of establishing a sound government for the French.

... have been met by today's leaders. We have met the challenge of Washington-Lee. As tomorrow's leaders, what challenges will we face?
